ROBBERS LOOT CASH REGISTER

Allen's Grocery Store Broken Into Last Night and $23.36 Taken From Drawer.

BELIEVED TO BE LOCAL TALENT

Register Found in Back Yard This Morning—Large Safe Was Not Tamped With.

The first robbery of fair week occurred last night after it was thought that the fair would pass this year without an offense against the law. Some time during the night thieves broke into the grocery store of L. L. Allen in Main street and looted the money drawer. They carried the heavy cash register out in the small enclosure back of the store and there rifled it. The clerks of the store found it there this morning, when they opened up. The drawer contained $23.36 all of which was taken. When the robbery was discovered City Marshal Price was immediately called, but no trace could be found of the robbers. They entered through the back door, prying it open and breaking the lock. Close inspection showed several tracks around the door and that there was probably more than one in the party. The scars on the door show that the robbers experienced much trouble in breaking in.

The proprietor of the store believes that it is not the work of professionals, but of local talent. Nothing else about the store was touched. A large safe sitting near the cash register was not tampered with. The spring on the drawer of the cash register was broken so that it will not close and shut, but the register is still in working order.

Nassr left yesterday afternoon at 2:15 for Shelby, Mo. Before leaving he said he hoped to be back next year with a two passenger outfit.

While there Mr. Logan was the guest of the Carthage checker club.

SCHOOL EXHIBIT RECEIVED PRAISE

Work of Pupils of Industrial School Wins Much Favorable Comment.

TEACHERS DOING GREAT WORK

One of the most interesting features in the floral hall exhibit this week at the county fair was the work of the pupils of the Industrial school. The teachers in the school collected several different samples of sewing made by children varying in ages from the youngest to the oldest. Much favorable comment was heard of the work of the pupils who showed much ability along these lines. The teachers have never tired in their efforts to help their pupils along.

PLEADS GUILTY OF BOOTLEGGING

Orpheus Taylor Arrested by Will Redman on Fair Ground and Brought to Jail Here.

HIS SENTENCE IS WITHHELD

Mayor Cowling Will Investigate and Probably Will Make Decision Next Monday.

Languishing in the county jail with a charge of bootlegging against him is the fate of Orpheus Taylor, stump blower by trade. He was arrested yesterday evening by Will Redman, chief of the fair ground police, on the grounds and brought to the city and placed in jail.

Taylor was arraigned in court this morning before Mayor Harvey Cowling on the charge of selling liquor without a license. He pleaded guilty to the charge and the mayor withheld the sentence until Monday when he will make his decision. Taylor was placed under a two hundred dollar bond and upon his failure to give the security he was placed back in jail.

Taylor had been suspected by policeman Redman who had been watching him. At last he caught him in the act and arrested him. It is thought that Taylor had assistants and that they will also be rounded up on the same charge. The police are working on the case and believe they have some very good clues to locate more of the offenders.

Dora Matlock was arrested on a charge of a similar nature and his trial will come up in mayor's court Monday. The police are determined to find more of the gang who it is believed assisted Taylor in carrying on the illicit trade and believe that they will succeed.

ART STUDENT ALSO HITCHES HORSES

Miss Rebecca Wirt Gets Horse Ready to Drive Away in One Minute, Thirty-Eight Seconds.

ALSO PRIZES ON FANCY WORK

An honorary diploma from the DePauw Art school and a record for fast time in hitching up a horse is the peculiar combination held by Miss Rebecca Wirt, who gave an exhibition at the fair ground yesterday. Between the heats of the races she gave the exhibition.

She harnessed the horse, hitched up, without any hooks or snaps and was in the buggy ready to drive in one minute 38 1/4 seconds. This was the second contest of the kind in which Miss Wirt has taken part. At her home near Greensburg she has several pieces of art which she has made and her work at DePauw University, where she was graduated two years ago was highly commended. She won several premiums on fancy work at the Rush county fair this year.

Traveling cooking schools are being sent out all over the German empire by the government.

THE WEATHER

Partly cloudy and cooler tonight and Sunday.

BELIEVE FAIR WAS A SUCCESS

The Directors Can Not Give Definite Statements Concerning Finances But Think it Paid.

MOST EXPENSIVE EVER GIVEN

Friday Crowd Larger Than Usual and People Enjoy Music and the Exhibits.

The fifty-third Rush county fair was a success both from an exhibitors' standpoint and financially. This is the opinion of the stockholders, although they are not yet able to say definitely concerning the financial end of the deal. This can not be determined definitely for several days, but they have every assurance that the association lost no money to say the least.

The Friday crowd was larger than the usual crowd on that day according to estimates made by old veterans who have estimated many crowds on the fair ground. There were more people from the country there than there usually are on Friday, and even in the face of the fact that they were more scattered than in former years there appeared to be a much larger crowd on the east hill than usual.

Friday was one of the best days of the fair from an exhibitors' standpoint, and there was something going on all the time to interest both the man from the country and the man from the city. The light harness exhibit was much better than usual and some unusually fancy horses and teams were shown. The annual parade of prize winning live stock, headed by the Indianapolis News Newsboys band attracted the interest it always does, and this year there was a good outlay of stock.

The Newsboys band furnished the music yesterday and the people who heard the band thought they were well repaid for coming for that alone. Under the direction of Professor Vandaworker the band furnished music that would please a critical audience.

The fair association deserves the approval of the people for its enterprise both in providing high class attractions and doing everything that would promote the interests of fairs in Rush county.

It is safe to say that this was the most expensive fair ever given in Rush county, and the attractions were probably more extensive than any ever engaged by the surrounding

NEWSPAPER SAID HE HAD BEEN DROWNED

Hillary Haydon Read Where he Had Met His Death in Kentucky Recently.

SAYS THERE IS SOME MISTAKE

Hillary Haydon of North Main street is shaking hands with himself that he is not what the paper said he was. He received a clipping from a Kentucky newspaper recently which stated that Hillary Hayden had been drowned sometime during the month of August. Mr. Haydon immediately examined himself to see that he was really alive. The wholesale hardware house which he represents sent him the paper with the note that they hoped the accident would not interfere any with his work. He says he never was accused of that before.

NAMES HORSE AND WINS BET

Clever Trick Pulled Off on Two Unsuspecting Supporters of a Rushville Horse.

STORIES OF THE FAIR GROUND

Child Has Fondness For Women's Pocketbooks and Gets Angry When he is Foiled.

There are always a lot of stories told in connection with the fair, and often there is considerable truth in them. The usual number were told this year and some of them have touches of story book pathos as well as David Harem shrewdness. And the stories this year have the truth side of the scales in their favor.

Two men were sitting in the grand stand Friday praising the work of Arleigh O. before the race started. The man selling score cards heard the conversation and got in on it.

"Well, you fellows think Arleigh O is so good, I will just bet you $1 I can name a horse that will beat her in every heat."

Confident that the Rushville mare would take the race in straight heats, one of her admirers promptly put up his dollar.

"I would like to have a dollar of that, too," said admirer number two. "All right, you're on," said the score card man forking up the $2 to cover the bets.

"Well, I name Dan Patch." The two Rushville men looked sheepish, beaten, and somewhat chagrined, but not a word of protest did they make as the man walked away with a smile and the $4.

Two girls were sitting near the floral hall yesterday afternoon and noticed a boy apparently three or four years old becoming friendly with them. They played with him for a time, and all the while noticed that he seemed to have a fondness for pocketbooks. He grabbed for theirs, but they thought little of it. Then he grabbed again, and they saw a look of determination in his eyes. He began to fight for the pocketbooks in one girl's lap, and the girls began to get angry. They slapped him once gently.

And the boy with a fondness for pocketbooks that didn't belong to him screamed and ran to his mother, who was telling fortunes in a tent nearby. The boy continued to scream, not because his jaws had been boxed, but because the girls would not let him have the pocketbook. The mother comforted him, and soon he went back to try it all over again, and the same maneuvers were repeated—this time with a slap a little harder. And it is said that this was not the first time the boy had been seen trying to snatch pocketbooks and that it was not for playthings that he wanted them.

GET MEXICAN HALF DOLLARS

Merchants of City Bothered in This Way During Fair Week.

Local firms have been bothered with Mexican half-dollars this week and early in the week there was so much complaint that it was feared there was a systematic deal on to get rid of the Mexican money. However, there has been little heard or seen of the "cheap halves" in the last two days.

PASSENGERS TAKEN ASHORE

Five of the Crew of the Steamer Ohio Drowned.

THEY STUCK TO THEIR POSTS

When Alaskan Steamer Struck the Rocks Off Steep Point, Wireless Operator Eccles Sounded the "C. Q. D." Signal and Kept Up the Communication With Shore Till He Was Sucked Under—The 128 Passengers on the Vessel Were Taken Off Safely in the Lifeboats.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 28.—In the sinking of the Alaska Steamship company's steamer Ohio off Steep Point, Alaska, five lives were lost. There were 128 passengers on board, but all escaped, the victims being from among the crew. The loss of the steamer and cargo is total.

The drowned: Purser F. J. Stephen, Seattle; Wireless Operator Geo. E. Eccles, Winnipeg; two seamen and the quartermaster, names not given.

A wireless dispatch says the Ohio sank in three minutes. This probably means that she was on the reef a considerable time and that the passengers were all off before the ship slid into deep water, which she did so speedily as to carry down five of the crew.

Some of the passengers were taken ashore in lifeboats and picked up by the fishing boat Kingfisher and taken to Swanson bay. Others were taken on the Humboldt and Rupert City. The Humboldt's passengers will be landed at Ketchikan and the Rupert City is taking her passengers to Vancouver.

Early reports said that fifty or more lives had been lost, but the steamship company fixes the list at five on the strength of wireless dispatches from M. J. Heney, railroad builder, who was taken off by the Humboldt. It is 320 miles from Seattle to Steep Point. The rocks where the boat went down shelve off rapidly into unusually deep water. The Ohio was insured for $220,000. Captain John Johnson, her navigator, was regarded as one of the most skillful on the Pacific coast.

UNFINISHED MESSAGE

Operator Eccles Stuck to the Ship a Moment Too Long.

New York, Aug. 28.—An account of the disaster has been received by the United Wireless company, one of whose operators, G. E. Eccles, of Winnipeg, perished in the sinking of the steamer Ohio off the Alaskan coast. Operator Booth at Ketchikan, Alaska, in a dispatch to the headquarters of the company here, says:

"About 1 a. m., I was sitting with my receivers clapped to my ears, having just finished working with Operator Eccles on board the Ohio, when I was startled by hearing him call 'C. Q. D., C. Q. D.' I immediately answered and he sent the following message: 'Ohio struck a rock—steamer sinking—send aid immediately or everybody will be lost.'

"The steamships Humboldt and Rupert of the McKenzie Brothers Steamship company happened to be near at the time, and they both called the Ohio, asking for her latitude. Eccles gave it immediately and the Rupert flashed back that they would change their course and stand by the Ohio, as soon as possible.

"In the meantime Eccles sent another message, saying: 'Ohio sinking fast—cannot hold out. Passengers being taken off in small boats. Captain and crew will stick to the last.'

"The Humboldt and Rupert both replied that they were headed for the Ohio and would pick up the passengers. Then came the final message from the stricken vessel. It was never finished: 'Passengers all got off and adrift in small boats,' it said. 'Captain and crew going off in the last boat, waiting for me now—good-by.' 'I was unable to get him again,' concludes Booth, 'and I knew he had gone down with his ship.'

Chicago, Aug. 28.—Lasting peace in the street railway situation in Chicago will be made certain in an agreement which will be adopted next Monday according to the outlook today. A plan to settle the wage controversy on a five year basis has been proposed and the answer will be given on that day.

Driven to Death by Delusion.

Bluffton, Ind., Aug. 28.—Charles Nicholson, aged thirty, suddenly ran from the back porch of his home, north of this city, and, plunging head first into an abandoned open well near the house, ended his life. He had been suffering under the delusion that the "Black Hand" was shadowing him.

ELBERT W. SHIRK UNDER ARREST

Echo of Case of First National Bank of Tipton.

BANK EXAMINER COMPLAINS

In a Complaint Lodged With United States Commissioner at Chicago, Bank Examiner Bennett Alleges That President Shirk Had Misapplied $24,252 of the Bank's Money—Banker, Arrested at Calumet Club, Gives Bond and Says He Can Easily Explain When Case Reaches Court.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—Charged with misapplying $24,252 of the bank's money, Elbert W. Shirk, president of the First National bank of Tipton, Ind., was arrested at the Calumet club here. It is alleged, in a complaint lodged with United States Commissioner Foote, that Shirk obtained the money through drafts made payable to himself.

The alleged shortage is said to have occurred on July 23. The bank suspended for a few days, but resumed business, and the federal authorities began an investigation. The complaint was signed by Wesley M. Bennett, a special bank examiner.

Shirk gave bond for $20,000 before Commissioner Foote and was released. In speaking of his arrest, Mr. Shirk said: "I held a note of the bank for $24,252, but Cashier Marker failed to give me credit for it. When the bank examiner came along and found an apparent shortage of $24,250, it was a natural thing for him to presume that I was not entitled to it. The Markers, undoubtedly because of their excitement, for it could benefit them in no way, neglected to credit me with the bank's note. When the shortage was discovered I contributed $50,000 to make it good. What would it profit me to take half that amount? When the case reaches court I will be able to prove easily that my draft was only for the amount of the bank's indebtedness to me."

"In 1904 Cashier Marker asked me to loan the bank $45,000, giving as a reason that the reserve fund was getting low. I lent the money, taking the bank's note signed by Cashier Marker, and let it run along until last January, when I requested that it be paid. The money was repaid in June and July last, the last payment being by draft on the First National bank of Chicago for the balance of the $45,000 and interest, amounting to a little over $25,000. I supposed this was all on the books. I had such perfect confidence in the Markers that practically the entire management of the bank was entrusted to them."

A KENTUCKY TRAGEDY

Horse Race Squabble at Henderson Leads to a Killing.

Henderson, Ky., Aug. 28.—William Ball, owner of several horses being raced at the meeting in progress in this city, shot and killed Ed Duke, the official starter. He fired four shots, all taking effect, and the last three being pumped into Duke's body as it lay prostrate in the street.

It is rumored that the cause of the murder was Duke's accusation that Ball was the cause of warrants being served upon the promoters of the racing here. Duke is a native of Los Angeles, Cal., and has a wife in Denver. Ball is a Henderson man. The warrants charged the Albuquerque Racing association, as the organization styles itself, with holding a race meet without the sanction of the state racing commission—an offense under the Kentucky statute.

Three Firemen Injured.

Indianapolis, Aug. 28.—One of the most spectacular and dangerous fires with which the Indianapolis fire department has ever dealt raged for three hours at the plant of the Tiona Refining company at Cruse and Daly streets. Four city firemen were painfully though not seriously burned. The loss was comparatively slight, the managers of the concern estimating it at about $6,000. The loss is fully covered by insurance.

Reformatory Chaplain Named.

Hanged Himself in Barn.

Salem, Ind., Aug. 28.—Henry Gordon, seventy years old, an old soldier and farmer, six miles northwest of Salem, hanged himself in his barn. No cause is known for the act.

Killed When Mine Cage Fell.

Galesburg, Ill., Aug. 28.—Millard Oliver was killed, Charles Snyder perhaps fatally injured, and James Linxmore hurt by a cage falling down in a coal mine.

Potato Crop Large

Reports from every section of the county and from every potato producing section of the country are to the effect that there will be an immense potato crop harvested this fall. The yield promises to be larger than ever before and the tubers are large and of good quality.

The wet season had much to do with making the crop what it is and a much larger acreage than usual was planted. Farmers and truckers are coming more and more each year to learn that potatoes are a profitable crop, in fact, more profitable than most any crop grown here and are acting accordingly by planting larger crops and a better producing quality of potatoes. Because of the large crop it is expected that the price will be very reasonable or about 50 cents to 65 cents a bushel at digging time.

Root Juice Scientist May Come Here

Many Local People are Sending Him Invitations to Come.

There are many people here that are very much interested in the great health-creating discovery that seems to have made so many remarkable cures in and around Ft. Wayne, Ind. Consequently many people are writing to the scientist and inviting him to come to this point and start a demonstration. "Where there is so much smoke there must be some fire," and as so many people of Ft. Wayne and other points are so enthusiastic in praising the Root Juice remedy, it certainly must be a remarkable health-producing agent. Scores of those who have used the remedy claim that it soon removes all soreness from the stomach and bowels and so strengthens the liver and kidneys that good digestion and secretion is certain. Then such troubles as catarrh of the stomach and bowels, indigestion, constipation, rheumatism, various kidney complaints and most of the troubles common to women cease to exist as the cause is removed. Scores of people who were cured by the great remedy are so thankful that they are publishing it to the world. It is hoped the scientist can be induced to arrange with one of our local druggists to demonstrate his great remedy to the people of this city.

GOLD MEDAL FLOUR

Despair and Despondency

No one but a woman can tell the story of the suffering, the despair, and the despondency endured by women who carry a daily burden of ill-health and pain because of disorders and derangements of the delicate and important organs that are distinctly feminine. The tortures so bravely endured completely upset the nerves if long continued. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a positive cure for weakness and disease of the feminine organism.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

It allays inflammation, heals ulceration and soothes pain. It tones and builds up the nerves. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. Honest medicine dealers sell it, and have nothing to urge upon you as "just as good."

It is non-secret, non-alcoholic and has a record of forty years of cures. Ask your neighbors. They probably know of some of its many cures. ## BOLIVIA AND PERU CLASH.

Details of the Boundary Dispute Between the Two Countries.

The territory involved in the dispute between Bolivia and Peru over the frontier limits of both countries comprises hundreds and hundreds of square miles of very rich land, all lying at the eastern base of the Cordilleras. "That, along with other rich territory lying near the Acre river, would have been Brazilian today," said Senor J. Aguirre-Acha, the consul general of Bolivia in New York city, in explaining the causes of the riots in La Paz, the Bolivian capital, "had not Bolivia fought for it in the war between those two countries within the last generation. As a result of that contest Brazil paid Bolivia $10,000,000. That money, large sums of which still are on deposit in New York and London, has been chiefly expended in building railroads intended to develop Bolivian commerce and increase the trade relations between my country and Brazil through forming rail connections with the traffic that plies the rivers of both states. Already the railroad has been completed from Oruro to Viacha, and a line now is under construction from Oruro to Uyuni, which lies to the southward.

"Villages and cities that owe their founding wholly to Bolivian initiative have sprung up in great number throughout the disputed territory. Thus Bolivia has spent its money there as well as the blood of its people. Two thousand of its soldiers were killed there in one campaign against Brazil. In that conflict not one Peruvian citizen raised a hand to protect the territory in question. Not one Peruvian soldier ever fought to gain that strip of land. But when the hostilities had concluded Peru stepped in with its claim that the territory rightly belonged to it.

"Peru assumed to base its claim on the contention that the land belonged to it by reason of certain dispositions made by Spanish kings, but that contention practically was a mere assertion. On the other hand, before the South American republics were formed and when Spanish control dominated, the land in question formed a part of the territory which, with Bolivia's area today, was under the jurisdiction of the central Spanish authority that existed at Charcas, the latter now forming the present city of Sucre. Peru's territory was administered by Spanish authority from Lima, Argentina's area from Buenos Aires, Chile by the captain general then established at Santiago, and so on. So when similar argument was required to meet the Peruvian contention of priority of rights Bolivia had direct proof to advance in support of its claim that the territory in question always had been part of its area, even under the Spanish kings.

"We accepted Argentina's president as arbitrator because of the close friendship which had existed between that country and my people. For more than four years Senor Don Eliodoro Villazon, who as president elect of Bolivia will assume his official duties on Aug. 6, served as Bolivian minister in Buenos Aires."

TRIBUTE TO DR. HUNTINGTON

Jews Remember Episcopal Clergyman's Sympathy In Kishineff Massacre.

To the Rev. Dr. William R. Huntington, rector of Grace church, New York city, who recently died at Nahant, Mass., Annette Kohn of New York pays the following tribute:

In the death of Dr. William R. Huntington the Protestant Episcopal church mourns the loss of a good Christian, a valuable and hardworking clergyman and a fine man.

But Dr. Huntington had a wider humanity, a spirit of truer religion and a finer manhood than can be confined within the bounds of any theological sect or creed. He was a cosmopolitan citizen of the world to whom all men were brothers and whose noble heart was touched by the sufferings and sorrows of any of God's children, whatever their faith, their race or their country.

At the time of the great Russian massacre at Kishineff, that electrified the civilized world, when 70,000 Russian Jews marched in funeral procession up Broadway, New York, bewailing with dirges the loss of kinsmen and compatriots, it was Dr. Huntington who ordered the funeral bells of Grace church to be tolled during the entire long day of that weird and solemn funeral procession while he stood with bared head watching it pass the church.

It was a fine and sympathetic act, noble in its simplicity, simple in its great nobility.

When the writer of this tribute expressed appreciation of this friendly sympathy to Dr. Greer, the bishop of the diocese, the good bishop disclaimed any personal responsibility for it, saying that "all the credit belonged to Dr. Huntington, for the act was his own entirely, though the good doctor had his highest commendation for having conceived it."

The Jewish population not only of New York, but of the United States, were deeply moved by this touching token of sympathy and fellowship.

Today as a body they join his family, his church and the Christian community in mourning his death and revering his memory.

Do You Realize How Many Autos There Are?

300,000 are Whizzing About in This Country and Capital is Enormous

Do you realize that something like 300,000 automobiles are whizzing about in this country?

In every city, town and hamlet, over every country road and up the mountain sides, steam, gasoline and electric machines are whirling their human freight every day in the year. Yes, 300,000 of them are transporting humanity.

Few realize how vast the automobile industry has become. The machines are so common that the importance of the business has been overlooked by the public.

But pause an instant and contemplate some cold facts.

There are 121 establishments manufacturing automobiles in the country.

The capital invested is $20,555,247.00.

Officials and clerks draw annually $1,076,425.00.

The wage earners number 10,239.

They earn annually $6,188,950.00.

The annual output is 21,692 cars.

An enormous business.

The automobile is no longer a luxury for the very wealthy. It has become a necessity. Not only the wealthy, but families of moderate means find the self-propelled vehicles almost a necessity.

Father goes to the office or to his factory, mother and daughter go shopping, and the children go to school in the car. The upkeep is no greater than the care of a horse or two, and the mobility of the automobile makes up for the slight difference.

The automobile has entered almost every business. Merchants in cities who formerly maintained dozens of horses for delivery service, have retired the equine in favor of machines. Fire departments in some cities use gasoline driven apparatus. Gasoline patrol wagons are common. Farmers go back and forth to town in their cars.

It is estimated that cars average $1,250, which would make the 300,000 in this country worth one hundred million dollars ($100,000,000).

American cars cost from $900 to $5,000, but the medium priced car of from $1,000 to $2,500 is the most popular.

Some day, when the market is glutted, perhaps automobiles will come down in price, just as the bicycle did, and new cars of excellent make will be within the reach of nearly all, but this seems far away.

Seventy Years Old.

Rheumatism and neuralgia yield their pain to Perry Davis' Painkiller—so do sprains, burns, bruises. It cures colds, colic, diarrhoea. For seventy years it has been doing good. If it's used early suffering is saved and danger avoided. A 35 cent bottle is the new size; but a 50 cent bottle is really the cheapest—it holds so much more.

GOLD MEDAL FLOUR

The sandwich as a food article, says a writer in a German paper, had its 150th birthday this year. It is 150 years since the fourth Earl of Sandwich, who was an inveterate card player, had his servant bring him a slice of meat between two pieces of bread, so that he might continue to play while he ate.

FREE TO HOMESEEEKERS.

Opportunity to Obtain Government Farms in Fertile Section of Nevada.

The great agricultural development now going on in the west is attracting widespread attention, and every "land opening" calls out thousands of letters of inquiry concerning the opportunity for settlers. Just now unusual interest centers in the Truckee-Carson irrigation project in Nevada, where a thousand farms offered to homeseekers by the government open alluring possibilities.

These lands are free to every bona fide homeseeker, the only expense, with the exception of the nominal filing fee, being the pro rata share of the cost of building the irrigation system. This charge amounts to $30 per acre, payable in ten annual installments, without interest. There is no drawing or any element of chance in applying for one of these farms. It is only necessary to make a homestead entry at the land office at Carson City or at the office of the land commissioner at Fallon, Nev.

Nature has endowed few regions more liberally with all the elements necessary to build up a great commonwealth than are found in this section. The fertile fields grow alfalfa, cereals, fruits, vegetables—in fact, practically all the products of the temperate zone. The climate is dry and delightful, and the valley is singularly free from severe storms. The sun shines almost every day in the year. The great mining regions furnish a home market and good prices for everything that can be raised, and splendid transportation facilities connect the project with the commercial centers of the country. The government irrigation system assures the farmers an abundant supply of water. The rivers offer unlimited possibilities for the development of power.

LIFE JOB OFFER FOR HONESTY

Brakeman Won't Leave Railroad and Is Promoted—He Found $30,000.

Declining a life position of $100 a month, Brakeman William J. Robelen of the Long Island railroad, who a few days ago found a hand bag belonging to Mrs. A. Schwab containing $30,000 worth of jewelry, announced recently that he would stick to railroading and was forthwith promoted from brakeman to be collector, which is but a step removed from that of conductor.

Robelen said he had been with the railroad four years and as he is only twenty-two years old he hopes ultimately to work up to a position in railroading that will eventually pay him seven times $100 a month.

It was on his return from Rockaway to Long Island City that Robelen found the hand bag in a seat in a passenger coach. Opening it he found it filled with diamonds and pearls, besides a sum of money. He turned it over to the company, and it was identified as the property of Mrs. A. Schwab of 318 West Eighty-fourth street, New York city, who had left it in the train when she got off at Hammels station.

Representatives of Mrs. Schwab gave Robelen $100, two suits of clothes and offered him a life position at $100 a month.

Robelen will continue on his run. He declined the company's offer of two weeks' vacation with pay, saying that he preferred to "keep on the job."

DIAMOND GOWN FOR ACTRESS

Anna Held Orders Designer to Make Most Startling Dress in the World.

Anna Held, the actress, is determined to make her "farewell" appearance in a veritable "diamond gown."

For this purpose Miss Held gathered all her jewelry, with the exception of her pearls, a few rings, etc., and gave them to a skillful designer in Paris with the naive instruction, "Take these jewels and make the most startling dress in the world."

The gown itself is of the softest oriental fabric of rose pink color. Over this is draped a filmy silver tissue, embroidered around the lower edge with great crimson princesses. The left side of the gown opens over a scanty underdress in a paler shade of pink, which is drawn closely to the figure. The bodice and sleeves on this same side are entirely composed of an arabesque design of purest white stones, hundreds of diamonds being used to carry out this inspiration.

Where the costume opens from hip to knee clasps of diamond solitaires hold it in place. The cloak worn at the same time is of a soft gray meteor, lined with varying shades of pink and the same color scheme of red princesses is carried out in delicate hand painting. A deep fringe of the latest novelty known as pearl pipes finishes the lower edge of this superb garment. —New York American.

How can any man be expected to keep his health and $5,000,000,000 too?

The summer of 1909 evidently hasn't as yet expended its heat energy.

The weather man certainly favored the Rush county fair this time. A good rain Wednesday night laid the dust, and then he held off until the fair was all over.

The country will probably never see ten-cent corn again, but the reports indicate that it will this year see more fifty-cent corn than ever before in its whole history.

Now that the Rush county fair is over, it occurs to us that we have not heard anything from Roosevelt for some time. What is the matter with the newspapers and the Roosevelt expedition. Has the Colonel's trusty typewriter gone wrong?

The bestowing of millions upon innumerable European nobles by American heiresses is getting to be so regular that Paul Morton's suggestion of an export tax on money of this kind is one certain to grow in favor after the first laugh is over. The latest case is that of Miss Anna Stewart, who is to marry a sprig of royalty and invest him with several million dollars of American money.

Changing lights are being seen on Mars nearly every night now, as the red planet draws nearer the earth. If the Martians are signaling us now, then they must have been doing so in 1891, the year of their last previous near approach, when similar lights were seen, and will discover that we are as benighted now as we were then. It might do us some good to hear what they are saying of us on Mars.

The Young Men's Commercial Club is coming on all right, but is moving cautiously and knowingly. A school of instruction was held last night when the private secretary of one of the foremost town boosters gave a number of the members some pointers on how to proceed. The young men are constantly at work on their project, but "Rome was not built in one day," neither can "Greater Rushville" be created in a month. Have patience and faith!

It was an old "grouch" who, after viewing a new four-story building of which the walls were just completed and the workmen were hoisting the joists for the roof, remarked, "That's just the way it will look after a fire has gutted it." Confound a "grouch" anyhow. What is he fit for? With the tariff bill passed, a cool spell at hand, the peach basket hat going out of style, work plentiful and wages good, nobody cares for his presence or opinions.

When Senator Aldrich needed votes in his tariff fight he never had any trouble in crossing over on the Democratic side and getting as many votes as he needed. For these reasons the Democrats will steer clear of the tariff in 1910 and 1912. They are so badly split on that question that it could easily disrupt their party, as silver did in 1896. Therefore, they will let that question alone. A discussion of the tariff would do serious harm to the party of Bailey, Daniel, McEnery and their associates. McEnery voted with Aldrich from the beginning to the end. More than half of the other Southern Democratic senators came to Aldrich's side whenever he asked them to do so. On the other hand, the Republican party will have some living issues to talk about in 1910. If will lose no time discussing a question which has been shelved for years to come. Each campaign, congressional as well as presidential, will deal with the questions which are vital when that campaign is here.

THIS AND THAT

After all there is nothing pleasant about seeing tents torn down and people leaving.

Well, suppose you are tired and worn out. Think of the fun you have had.

There is no better time than today for you to make a resolution to help double the population of Rushville.

New Castle will again try to pass from a town into a city. And to think that they have more factories there than we have. However, the game is young yet.

It was very considerate of those men not to get their fists so badly mixed that arrests would be necessary.

Did you ever notice how many people like to come back to Rush county. It's not only a great place to "come from," but "to come to" as well.

Watch for renewed activity in ship building among the "kids."

Some Literary Lemon Drops

The air ship hez come an' gone. Ther wuzn't much in it after all. Mostly gas. The races wuz considered very tame too. Ther wuz only one person hurt. Thet is—physical-ly. Fond parent! It may be the best money you spent wuz fer thet whip. One sad feature about the Fair wuz the absence uv the man with the toy balloons. It allus embarrasses me to see a dude. To think IT also belongs to the human family. Ther wuz a limited number at the Fair. And, ther wuz some real monkeys, too.

Old Mulberry Tree

Alonzo Rice, the Shelby county poet, has contributed the following poem to the Daily Republican.

The old mulberry stands on the side of the hill,
With the fleecy clouds over it, lazy and still;
A silkworm of fancy now spins from its leaves
A fabric as fine as those looms of the East,
In hues like the ones of the gay Flower Feast!

Near by it the river with azure-veined arm
Enfolds the fair landscape with many a charm;
The low-bending willows that trail in the tide,
And the smooth silvery sycamores rising in pride;
In the leaf-dotted shadow the honey bees sing,
While a sweet invitation the lily bells ring
To remain for a moment and rest, but for me
There's a charm that compels in the mulberry tree!

For years all the wonders its covert possessed,
From the velvety leaves to the well-rounded nest
Of the robin, that poised on a sentinel limb,
Would sing at the nightfall a wonderful hymn;
Far sweeter than rose from the sirens' fair isle,
That caused brave Ulysses to pause for a while!

The woodpeckers throng where the ripe berries drip
With a liquid far sweeter than moistened the lip
Of the fond devotee where the tall lilies grow
And the drops of rich Burgundy sparkle and flow;
But no revels of midnight have dazzled the head,
That peeps from the green leaves in turban of red!

(What a feast to the gods do the berries bestow
To the bird on the bough; to the poet below!)

There the little sapsucker, with many a dot
Has circled the trunk, and in each hidden spot
A berry has dropped by the same mystic spell
As the manna that once in the wilderness fell!

Tiptoeing, a limb we could reach with one hand,
With a boost from a friend we could easily land
Where we shinned up the mossy old trunk at our ease,
By clasping it close with our hands and our knees;
Then, thick fell the shower of fruit, pit-a-pat,
Plumb, into the basket, or rimless straw hat!

Like a palm in the desert, its branches oft rise,
In the heat of the day when the sun blinds my eyes;
How gladly I seek it when the sand burns my feet,
Like a pilgrim his Mecca, its green boughs I greet!

Gracious refuge of shadow! There oft times I seem
To behold that fair city John saw in his dream!
I recline by the fountain that flows by its root,
And drink the clear water and eat the ripe fruit,
While the deep-shadowed silence that falls over me,
Recalls the sweet peace that once crowned Galilee!
Shelbyville, Indiana. ALONZO RICE.

Why don't you hit the fellow that asks you if it's hot enough—if it makes you mad.

There is something auspicious about the weather man's treatment of Rush county. The chautauqua escaped rain, and the rain really helped the fair. It's the beginning of a long string of victories for Rushville and Rush county.

South Bend Home-Coming

Gorgeous in features will be a home-coming celebration which South Bend will have from October 3-9; although some weeks off the indications are that it will be the greatest celebration of its kind in the history of the Middle West and that it will not only attract to South Bend hundreds of former residents of the city and other parts of St. Joseph county, but thousands of visitors from other parts of the country.

The week will open with appropriate services in the churches and from day to day will be events which will keep the throngs of visitors busy. The city's fire department, one of the finest in the world, is arranging for events to be open to the world. Motorcycle races will be open to all amateurs and automobile races will be the center of great interest and open to the world. The most attractive event of the week will be a brilliant automobile floral parade open to all who wish to compete for the prizes. The principal parade feature will be the historical and industrial pageant October 7.

The celebration is under the direction of the South Bend Chamber of Commerce and extensive preparations are under way to have it an event of more than usual interest.

"His sorrowing wife," wrote the reporter unthinkingly, and the city editor glared as he changed it to "his sorrowing widow." "Her sorrowing widower," was how the reporter phrased his next obituary notice, and the city editor said things beneath his breath as he made it read "her sorrowing husband." ## CHAPTER XI.

Parley.

It was recalled one evening not long ago at the Wickup that the affair with Sinclair had all taken place within a period of two years, and that practically all of the actors in the event had been together and in friendly relation on a Thanksgiving day at the Dunning ranch not so very long before the trouble began. Dickie Dunning was away at school at the time, and Lance Dunning was celebrating with a riding and shooting fest and a barbecue.

The whole country had been invited. Bucks was in the mountains on an inspection trip, and Bill Dancing drove him with a party of railroad men over from Medicine Bend. The mountain men for 150 miles around were out. Gene and Bob Johnson, from Oroville and the Peace river, had come with their friends. From Williams Cache there was not only a big delegation—more of one than was really desirable—but it was led by old John Rebstock himself. When the invitation is general, lines cannot be too closely drawn. Not only was Lance Dunning something of a sport himself, but on the Long Range it is part of a stockman's creed to be on good terms with his neighbors. At a Thanksgiving day barbecue not even a mountain sheriff would ask questions, and Ed Banks, though present, respected the holiday truce. Cowboys rode that day in the roping contest who were from Mission creek and from Two Feather river.

Among the railroad people were George McCloud, Anderson, the assistant superintendent, Farrell Kennedy, chief of the special service, and his right-hand man, Bob Scott. In especial, Sinclair's presence at the barbecue was recalled. He had some cronies with him from among his up-country following, and was introducing his new bridge foreman, Karg, afterward known as Flat Nose, and George Seagrue, the Montana cowboy. Sinclair fraternized that day with the Williams Cache men, and it was remarked even then that though a railroad man he appeared somewhat outside the railroad circle. When the shooting matches were announced a brown-eyed railroad man was asked to enter. He had been out of the mountains for some time and was a comparative stranger in the gathering, but the Williams Cache men had not forgotten him; Rebstock, especially, wanted to see him shoot. While much of the time out of the mountains on railroad business, he was known to be closely in Bucks' counsels, and as to the mountains themselves, he was reputed to know them better than Bucks or Glover himself knew them. This was Whispering Smith; but, beyond a low-voiced greeting or an expression of surprise at meeting an old acquaintance, he avoided talk. When urged to shoot he resisted all persuasion and backed up his refusal by showing a bruise on his trigger finger. He declined even to act as judge in the contest, suggesting the sheriff, Ed Banks, for that office.

McCloud did not meet the host, Lance Dunning, that day nor since the day of the barbecue had Du Sang or Sinclair seen Whispering Smith until the night Du Sang spotted him near the wheel in the Three Horses. Du Sang at once drew out of his game and left the room. Sinclair in the meantime had undertaken a quarrel-some interview with Whispering Smith.

"I supposed you knew I was here," said Smith to him, amiably. "Of course I don't travel in a private car or carry a billboard on my back, but I haven't been hiding."

"The last time we talked," returned Sinclair, measuring words carefully, "you were going to stay out of the mountains."

"I should have been glad to, Murray. Affairs are in such shape on the division now that somebody had to come, so they sent for me."

The two men were sitting at a table. Whispering Smith was cutting and leisurely mixing a pack of cards.

"Well, so far as I'm concerned, I'm out of it," Sinclair went on after a pause, "but, however that may be, if you're back here looking for trouble there's no reason, I guess, why you can't find it."

"That's not it. I'm not here looking for trouble; I'm here to fix this thing up. What do you want?"

"Not a thing."

"I'm willing to do anything fair and right," declared Whispering Smith, raising his voice a little above the hum of the rooms.

"Fair and right is an old song." "And a good one to sing in this country just now. I'll do anything I can to adjust any grievance, Murray. What do you want?"

Sinclair for a moment was silent, and his answer made plain his unwillingness to speak at all. "There never would have been a grievance if I'd been treated like a white man." His eyes burned sullenly. "I've been treated like a dog."

"That is not it."

"That is it," declared Sinclair, savagely, "and they'll find it's it."

"Murray, I want to say only this—only this to make things clear. Bucks feels that he's been treated worse than a dog."

"Then let him put me back where I belong."

"It's a little late for that, Murray; a little late," said Smith, gently. "Shouldn't you rather take good money and get off the division? Mind you, I say good money, Murray—and peace."

Sinclair answered without the slightest hesitation: "Not while that man McCloud is here."

Whispering Smith smiled. "I've got no authority to kill McCloud."

"There are plenty of men in the mountains that don't need any."

"But let's start fair," urged Whispering Smith, softly. He leaned forward with one finger extended in confidence. "Don't let us have any misunderstanding on the start. Let McCloud alone. If he is killed—now I'm speaking fair and open and making no threats, but I know how it will come out—there will be nothing but killing here for six months. We will make just that memorandum on McCloud. Now about the main question. Every sensible man in the world wants something."

"I know men that have been going a long time without what they wanted."

Smith flushed and nodded. "You needn't have said that, but no matter. Every sensible man wants something, Murray. This is a big country. There's a World's Fair running somewhere all the time in it. Why not travel a little? What do you want?"

"I want my job, or I want a new superintendent here."

"Just exactly the two things, and, by heavens! the only two, I can't manage. Come once more and I'll meet you."

"No!" Sinclair rose to his feet. "No—damn your money! This is my home. The high country is my country; it's where my friends are."

"It's filled with your friends; I know that. But don't put your trust in your friends. They will stay by you, I know; but once in a long while there will be a false friend, Murray, one that will sell you—remember that."

"I stay," Whispering Smith looked up in admiration. "I know you're game. It isn't necessary for me to say that to you. But think of the fight you are going into against this company. You can worry them; you've done it. But a bronco might as well try to buck a locomotive as for one man or six or 600 to win out in the way you are playing."

"I will look out for my friends; others—" Sinclair hitched his belt and paused, but Whispering Smith, cutting and running the cards, gave no heed. His eyes were fixed on the green cloth under his fingers. "Others—" repeated Sinclair.

"Others?" echoed Whispering Smith, good-naturedly.

"May look out for themselves."

"Of course, of course! Well, if this is the end of it, I'm sorry."

"You will be sorry if you mix in a quarrel that is none of yours."

"Why, Murray, I never had a quarrel with a man in my life."

"You are pretty smooth, but you can't drive me out of this country. I know how well you'd like to do it; and, take notice, there's one trail you can't cross even if you stay here. I suppose you understand that."

Smith felt his heart leap. He sat in his chair turning the pack slowly, but with only one hand now; the other hand was free. Sinclair eyed him sidewise. Smith moistened his lips and when he replied spoke slowly:

"There is no need of dragging any allusion to her into it. For that matter, I told Bucks he should have sent any man but me. If I'm in the way, Sinclair, if my presence here is all that stands in the way, I'll go back and stay back as before, and send any one else you like or Bucks likes. Are you willing to say that I stand in the way of a settlement?"

Sinclair sat down and put his hands on the table. "No; your matter and mine is another affair. All I want between you and me is fair and right."

Whispering Smith's eyes were on the cards. "You've always had it."

"Then keep away from her."

"Don't tell me what to do."

"Then don't tell me."

"I'm not telling you. You will do as you please; so will I. I left here because Marion asked me to. I am here now because I have been sent here. It is in the course of my business. I have my living to earn and my friends to protect. Don't dictate to me, because it would be of no use."

"Well, you know now how to get into trouble."

"Every one knows that; few know how to keep out."

"You can't lay your finger on me at any turn of the road."

"Not if you behave yourself."

"And you can't bully me."

"Surely not. No hard feelings, Murray. I came for a friendly talk, and if it's all the same to you I'll watch this wheel awhile and then go over to the Wickup. I leave first—that's understood. I hope—and if your pink-eyed friend is waiting outside tell him there is nothing doing, will you, Murray? Who is the albino, by the way? You don't know him? I think I do. Fort City, if I remember. Well, good-night, Murray."

It was after 12 o'clock and the room had filled up. Roulette balls were dropping, and above the faro table the extra lights were on. The dealers, fresh from supper, were putting things in order for the long trick.

At the Wickup Whispering Smith found McCloud in the office signing letters. "I can do nothing with him," said Smith, drawing down a window-shade before he seated himself to detail his talk with Sinclair. "He wants a fight."

McCloud put down his pen. "If I am the disturber it would be better for me to get out."

"That would be hauling down the flag across the whole division. It is too late for that. If he didn't center the fight on you he would center it somewhere else. The whole question is, who is going to run this division, Sinclair and his gang or the company? and it is as easy to meet them on one point as another. I know of no way of making this kind of an affair pleasant. I am going to do some riding, as I told you. Kennedy is working up through the Deep Creek country, and has three men with him. I shall ride toward the Cache and meet him somewhere near South Mission pass."

can't answer them. I can look wise, but I don't know anything. You know what we are up against. This fellow has grown a tiger among the wolves, and he has turned the pack loose on us. One thing I ask you to do. Don't expose yourself at night. Your life isn't worth a coupling-pin if you do."

McCloud raised his hand. "Take care of yourself! If you are murdered in this fight I shall know I got you in and that I am to blame."

"And suppose you were?" Smith had risen from his chair. He had few mannerisms, and recalling the man the few times I have seen him, the only impression he has left on me is that of quiet and gentleness. "Suppose you were?" He was resting one arm on top of McCloud's desk. "What of it? You have done for me up here what I couldn't do, George. You have been kind to Marion when she hadn't a friend near. You have stood between him and her when I couldn't be here to do it, and when she didn't want me to—helped her when I hadn't the privilege of doing it." McCloud put up his hand in protest, but it was unheeded. "How many times it has been in my heart to kill that man. She knows it; she prays it may never happen. That is why she stays here and has kept me out of the mountains. She says they would talk about her if I lived in the same town, and I have stayed away." He threw himself back into the chair. "It's going beyond both of us now. I've kept the promise I made to her to-day to do all in my power to settle this thing without bloodshed. It will not be settled in that way, George."

"Was he at Sugar Buttes?"

"If not, his gang was there. The quick get-away, the short turn on Van Horn, killing two men to rattle the posse—it all bears Sinclair's earmarks. He has gone too far. He has piled up plunder till he is reckless. He is crazy with greed and insane with revenge. He thinks he can gallop over this division and scare Bucks till he gets down on his knees to him. Bucks will never do it. I know him, and I tell you Bucks will never do it. He is like that man in Washington; he will fight it to the death. He would fight Sinclair if he had to come up here and meet him single-handed, but he will never have to do it. He put you here, George, to round that man up. This is the price for your advancement, and you must pay it."

"It is all right for me to pay it, but I don't want you to pay it. Will you have a care for yourself, Gordon?"

"Will you?"

"Yes."

"You need never ask me to be careful," Smith went on. "That is my business. I asked you to watch your window shades at night, and when I came in just now I found one up. It is you who are likely to forget, and in this kind of a game a man never forgets but once. I'll lie down on the Lincoln lounge, George."

"Get into the bed."

"No; I like the lounge, and I'm off early."

In the private room of the superintendent, provided as a sleeping apartment in the old headquarters building many years before hotel facilities reached Medicine Bend, stood the only curio the Wickup possessed—the Lincoln lounge. When the car that carried the remains of Abraham Lincoln from Washington to Springfield was dismantled, the Wickup fell heir to one piece of its elaborate furnishings, the lounge, and the lounge still remains as an early-day relic. Whispering Smith walked into the bedroom and disposed himself in an incredibly short time. "I've borrowed one of your pillows, George," he called out, presently.

"Take both."

"One's enough, I hope," he went on, rolling himself like a hen into the double blanket, "the horse Kennedy has left me will be all right; he got three from Bill Dancing. Bill Dancing," he snorted, driving his nose into the pillow as if in final memorandum for the night, "he will get himself killed if he fools around Sinclair too much now."

McCloud, under a light shaded above his desk, opened a roll of blue-prints. He was going to follow a construction gang up the Crawling Stone in the morning and wanted to look over the surveys. Whispering Smith, breathing regularly, lay not far away. It was late when McCloud put away his maps, entered the inner room and looked at his friend.

He lay like a boy asleep. On the chair beside his head he had placed his old-fashioned hunting-case watch, as big as an alarm clock, the kind a railroad man would wind up with a spike-maul. Beside the watch he had laid his huge revolver in its worn leather scabbard. Breathing peacefully, he lay quite at his companion's mercy, and McCloud, looking down on this man who never made a mistake, never forgot a danger, and never took an unnecessary chance, thought of what between men confidence may sometimes mean. He sat a moment with folded arms on the side of his bed, studying the tired face, defenseless in the slumber of fatigue. When he turned out the light and lay down, he wondered whether, somewhere in the valley of the great river to which he was to take his men in the morning, he should encounter the slight and reckless horsewoman who had blazed so in anger when he stood before her at Marion's. He had struggled against her charm too long. She had become, how or when he could not tell, not alone a pretty woman but a fascinating one—the creature of his constant thought. Already she meant more to him than all else in the world. He well knew that if called on to choose between Dickie and all else he could only choose her. But as he drew together the curtains of thought and sleep stole in upon him, he was resolved first to have Dickie; to have all else if he could, but, in any case, Dickie Dunning. When he awoke day was breaking in the mountains. The huge silver watch, the low-voiced man and the formidable six-shooter had disappeared. It was time to get up, and Marion Sinclair had promised an early breakfast.

INVADED BY DEATH*Endurance Race at New York
Marked by Tragedy.

New York, Aug. 28.—Louis Cole, mechanic of the Stearns car in the 24-hour automobile race, was killed last night and the driver, Laurent Gross, was fatally injured in a collision with the Acme car shortly before midnight. Patcheke and Maynard, the crew of the Acme, were only slightly injured. Both cars were wrecked.

Gross and Cole were thrown from their car in the collision. Cole was almost instantly killed; Gross's spine was broken and he cannot recover. The race was stopped at once, but was resumed in ten minutes.

Less than fifteen minutes later, to avoid another collision at the same point, Vantine, driving the other Acme entry, risked death by steering his car straight through the heavy infield fence. Both he and his mechanic escaped injury and his car was damaged only slightly, losing a front wheel. The machine was dragged back to its quarters and started again in a few minutes with a new wheel.

A short time before the accident in which Cole was killed, Driver Hughes of the Allen-Kingston, was seriously burned when his clothes caught fire from a blaze which started near his gasoline tank. The blaze was put out by one of the other drivers, who stopped his car and rolled Hughes in the sand, while the mechanics smothered the flames.

RACE FEELING
STIRS GEORGIA*Two Negroes Lynched at Soperton.*PROMINENT PLANTER KILLED

When an Escaped Negro Convict Started Out With Threats to Kill a Hundred White Men, the Inevitable Happened—He and a Negro Who Harbored Him Were Strung Up, but Not Before One of the Possemen Was Slain and Four Others Wounded—Negro Wore Steel Breastplate.

Soperton, Ga., Aug. 28.—One of the most exciting man-hunts this section has ever known can be summarized as follows:

Two negroes lynched.
A posse in pursuit of the wife of one of the victims.

The killing of a prominent planter, a member of the posse.

The probable fatal injury of the sheriff of Montgomery county.

The wounding of four other members of the posse.

Ben Clark, an escaped convict from the Bibb county chain gang, was shot to death after a fierce battle and his body burned. The negro threatened to kill Nicholas Adams, a merchant of Kibbee, "and a hundred others." John Sweeney, who harbored the ex-convict, was taken from a passenger train a mile from Tarrytown and lynched.

The posse then set out in search of Sweeney's wife, who it is said was in the neighborhood. Intense excitement prevails throughout this section.

James Durden, a prominent planter and member of the posse which captured Clark, was shot and instantly killed. The other members of the posse who were shot by Clark were: Sheriff James Lester, Walker Wimmoms and three others unknown. The officer received an ugly wound in the breast.

The posse found Clark in Sweeney's house. Sweeney's wife was at home, but Sweeney was absent. The sheriff called on Clark to surrender. For answer he received a 44-caliber bullet fired from an automatic gun. Durden was shot and other members of the posse fell before the torrent of lead dealt by the negro. He continued to fire until his ammunition was exhausted. He was then overpowered and his body riddled with bullets. He wore a steel breastplate that turned Winchester bullets. A pile of logs was covered with crude turpentine and the body cremated. In the excitement the woman escaped. The events fired the intense spirit of the posse and it is said she cannot escape the search that is being instituted.

Sweeney was later caught near here. He was carried aboard a northbound train to a secluded wood near Tarrytown, where his body was riddled with bullets after being swung up to a sapling.

STILL IMPROVING

Continued Upward Tendency in Trade and Industry.

New York, Aug. 28.—"Trade and industrial tendencies are still in the direction of improvement," says Bradstreet's weekly review of trade today. "Impetus is given these movements by the beginning of the cotton harvest at the south, by the completion of the spring wheat harvest in the northwest and on the Pacific coast, and by the gathering in of other products of agricultural interests in various sections of the country. In commercial lines jobbing trade still has the center of the stage, and reports are practically unanimous that buyers' excursions are stimulating fall demand as the close of the vacation period approaches. Retail trade still largely deals with the disposal of summer goods, mainly at concessions. In wholesale and jobbing lines of dry goods there is still in evidence cautious buying."

The Dog Escaped.
Youngstown, O., Aug. 28.—William Matthews, son of H. E. Matthews, superintendent of the Sharon Steel Hoop company, was accidentally shot at his home. A neighbor's dog entered the yard and he secured a shotgun to shoot the animal. The gun failing to go off, he used it as a club, when it was discharged, tearing a hole in his chest, from which he died almost instantly.

Cruelty Resented by Moors.
Fez, Morocco, Aug. 28.—The cruelty of Mulai Mafid's men to the followers of El Roghi captured by them, has been denounced here, and as a protest the inhabitants of Taza have refused to recognize the new governor appointed by Mulai Mafid. Twenty-five of the prisoners whose hands and feet were severed have succumbed.
